Turner, Sailing as Marquis, Bangs Cabin Door in Woman's Face.

NOT HIS SISTER, HE SAYS

Won a Conditional Legacy of $250,000 by Marrying Widow of 75.

John Spencer Turner married a widow of 75 in London last summer and she died of apoplexy two months after the wedding. By the terms of the will of his father, also John Spencer Turner, a cotton manufacturer, the son was to receive a legacy of $250,000 should be marry. He had been receiving only the income from this. Recently he claimed the legacy, and Surrogate Ketcham of Brooklyn decided that he was entitled to it.

North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. as the Marquis Spencer-Turbacked out of her Hoboken pier a woman ran up the gangplank waving a cessful." paper and burst into the purser's room saying that she wanted the "Marquis." she was shown to his stateroom and Mr. Turner in response to her knocking came out. She waved the paper be-fore him and asked him if he recognized her as his sister. Mr. Turne his father forty-seven years ago and that the certificate proved it.

"It is not so!" shouted Mr. Turner, and, banging the stateroom door in the woman's face, locked himself in. Later the woman came down on the pier and told the reporters that she was Mrs. Marie Stair of 702 Grand street, Hoboken, and that Mr. Turner surely was her "long lost brother," as she had hysterically declared to the purser.

looked puzzled, and the woman declared that her mother had been married to

Mrs. Stair said at her home last night that she went to the pier with Detective Sergeant Owen Quinn of Hoboken for the sole purpose of finding out if the Marquis booked for passage was her brother and she was satisfied that he was.

"My mother, Rosana Quinn." she said, "was married to John Turner, a Chester, England, farmhand, who later became a cotton manufacturer. The ceremony took place in the Roman Catholic chapel in the district of Boughton in April, 1866. They lived at 3 Perry buliding. Frodsham street. Chester. Three years after their marriage my father left mother and she finally came to America, bringing me with her.

"John was left behind. Mother went to live at the Madison Convent at Madison Station, N. J., and later she put me in the South Orange Catholic Home. Before her death my mother gave me her marriage certificate and it was this paper that I showed the Marquis on the ship. I have been trying for years to find my brother John and when I card that a John Turner was going

Mrs. Stair said it was true that Turner slammed the door of his cabin in her face. She said she was positive was her brother.

CLEARS MISS LESLIE'S DEATH.

Consul's Cable Reassures Father of Dead Actress.

Henry M. Schmitz of 178 West Ninety-seventh street, father of Miss nces Leslie, received a cablegram from the American Consul at Southampton yesterday which convinced him, he said, that his daughter had died a natural death. The cablegram said:

"Attended Coroner's court. Formal inquest April 14. Body being sent home Saturday embalmed. Death undoubtedly due to natural causes. "SWALM, Consul."

DWYER'S MEN KILLED CUSTOM.

Men Visiting Robespierre Dwindled From 110 a Night to None.

Charles MacFarland, superintendent of the apartment at 230 West Fiftieth street known as the Robespierre and later as the Majestic and who, with the reputed owner, Ernest Tribelhorn, is defendant to Police Inspector D wyer's charge of keeping a disorderly house, turned State's evidence at albearing before Magistrate Butts yes-terday MacFarland said that Tribelhorn had em-

MacFarland said that Tribelhorn had employed him a year ago and that he was superintendent for eleven months quitting January 29 last. His wages were 260 a month. At Tribelhorn's request he let and rented apartments. He saw Tribelhorn every day or every other day. MacFarland said the boarders were women and he plainly characterized the purpose for which they took apartments.

He said that men used to patronize the house in droves until Dwyer put policemen at the door. One night at Tribelhorn's suggestion he counted the number of visitors. There were 110 men. Two weeks later, he said, after Dwyer's policemen were stationed at the entrance the number of willed down to ten and finally to one and the Magistrate Butte will continue the hearing

BROOKLYN POOLROOM RAIDS. Costigan's Squad Makes Six Arrests: Gets Racing Sheets.

A squad of detectives and patrolmen under Lieut. Costigan raided two alleged poolrooms in Brooklyn last night. In a room at the rear of a saloon at 45 Taafe place five men were arrested in a crowd of 200, and at 35 Graham avenue one man was arrested among forty-five. The charge in each case was maintaining a racing poolroom.

The warrants were issued by Chief

Magistrate Kempner of Brooklyn, who will have the prisoners before him this morning in the Adams street court. The money taker in the Taafe place room had $3,000 in his pockets and the cashier at 35 Graham avenue had $1,000.

Not Room in Temple and School for Thousands of men and women, many of them in tears, yesterday thronged about the house of Jacob H. Werbelovsky, the Jewish philanthropist, who died on Monday at 85 Montrose avenue, Williamsburg, and clamored for admission to the funeral service. The crowd grew so that the police reserves were called and had trouble in keeping the street clear for the funeral procession. Services were held first in the School for Biblical Instruction and later at the synagogue of Kesser Torah.

Crowds followed the hearse as the procession was going from the school to the synagogue, and open air services were held at Throop avenue and Gerry street and again in Moore street. Street cars on several lines were blocked for a quarter of an hour.

Interment took place in Mount Zion Cemetery.

Bronz Husband Thinks Young Wife Was Lured Away.

Arthur Schonemann returned to his home at 1123 Intervale avenue. The Bronx, last night and found that his wife had gone, leaving a hastily scribbled note on the kitchen table. The note read:
"DEAR ARTHUR: Good-by. Don't be sorry I left you. I sm going away. Take good care of baby Roy. Yours,
"Hilda."

From neighbors Schonemann learned

From neighbors Schonemann learned that his wife left the house shortly after noon, carrying two suit cases. She asked a neighbor to watch the house until she returned, saying that she was taking silverware to a storage warehouse.

Schonemann told the police that he feared his wife, who is 21 years old, had been lured away. The couple have been married four years and have a son 1½ years old. For a week, Schonemann said, they had been making plans for a trip to Atlantic City which they were to take Atlantic City which they were to take

JUDGE READ IT IN "THE SUN."

Didn't Know Till Then That Litigant He Decided For Was Relative. Supreme Court Justice Hendrick said yesterday that he didn't know until he read a news article in THE SUN on Sunday last that one of the defendants in a case before him was his cousin, Municipal Justice Peter A. Shiel of The Bronx, who is the defendant in a suit brought by Frederick Stelle for $25,000 damages, alleging false arrest.

Justice Hendrick said that in deciding motions he never looked at the names of the litigants and that the fact that his decision was in favor of Justice Shiel was based on the law and the facts and not for any other reason. He cen-sured the attorneys in the case for not telling him that one of the defendants was related to him. Justice Hendrick vacated his order yesterday, announcing that he would send the case to another Judge. Justice Hendrick heard 992 motions within the two weeks when the Shiel case was before him.
